Short Bio:

Raquel Pruna is a Ph.D. candidate in Management Sciences at ESADE Business School. Prior to that, she was involved, as a post-doctoral fellow at ESADE, in the H2020-EU Blindspot project, studying networks of cognition in financial markets. Raquel's research area lies at the intersection of organization theory and strategy. Specifically, she is interested in how status dynamics drive individual and collective behavior in financial and creative markets.

Raquel holds a B.A. in Physics and a M.S. in Biomedical Engineering. Before joining ESADE, she obtained a Ph.D. in Applied Sciences, consisting in the design and development of nanostructured biosensors for the optimization of lab-on-a-chip devices. She was visiting fellow at the Institut des Sciences Analytiques in Lyon (France), the Institut de Química Avançada de Catalunya (IQAC-CSIC) and the Institut de Ciència de Materials de Barcelona (ICMAB-CSIC).
