

Active collaboration, starting when you are a student, is essential for the proper functioning of the Scholarship Programme

Caterina Domènech, scholarship student in the 2nd year of the BBA and President of ESTalent

Being a scholarship student is both an honour and a responsibility. Having an institution like ESADE invest in you and in your future is an indescribable feeling that inspires you to always give the best of yourself in every situation. But on the other hand, it's a responsibility because it's a major investment and you want to show that all these resources are being put to good use. And in my case, this sense of responsibility is even greater because Banc Sabadell Foundation is behind the scholarship, having contributed the resources that are allowing me to study at this university.

I think that active collaboration, starting when you are a student, is essential for the proper functioning of the Scholarship Programme. I'm currently serving as President of ESTalent, an association whose objective is to raise money for the Scholarship Programme through student-organised activities. The contributions we obtain are small, but they are essential to increase visibility and raise awareness among students about the importance of continuing to collaborate in the future.

ESADE is known for the excellent quality of its teaching and for its international outlook. But one aspect of ESADE that I would like to highlight is campus life. There is a lot going on outside of class. Associations play a very important role in student life, allowing us to explore topics of interest in the business world through talks and competitions.

Right now, I am discovering each of the areas that make up a business. Although I haven't ruled anything out, I'm very interested in consulting because this field offers a dynamic, international career path. Whatever the future holds, I know that as a graduate of ESADE I will be collaborating with the Scholarship Programme to ensure that other talented young people will have the same opportunity that I am enjoying right now.
