Orientation sessions and tutoring plan

Procedure to welcome new students

a) Orientation session

With the start of the new academic year, the Law School offers an orientation session for new students. This session consists primarily of welcoming new students, an official presentation by the Dean, Vice Dean and other Law School personnel interacting closely with students and a brief explanation about the study plan, the tutorial sessions, the methodology used in Law School classes and details about the primary services ESADE provides (language classes, library, intranet, etc.).

The aim of this orientation session is for students to get to know those in charge of the Law School, familiarise themselves with the facilities and the content of the degree programme over the next four years of their lives and meet their future classmates.

b) Preparatory classes

Along with the orientation session, the following seminars are available for new students if needed before beginning the programme:
Our own tutorial sessions
We should also note that the Law School offers first-year students a tutorial programme from their very first day. Its aim is to primarily support and help new students to adapt to university life. Specifically, tutors are more active this year than in the following years, dedicating time weekly to meet with students and more closely track their adaptation to the campus and university studies.

We should also point out that each tutor has a limited number of tutees assigned, allowing him/her to closely monitor students. In addition, tutors for first-year students are academic personnel from first-year classes or programme management personnel.

Tutors and tutees can also make use of ESADE’s intranet to facilitate their communication:

- First-cycle tutorials: Help students to adapt to the change to university life and studies. Each student has a tutor.
- Second-cycle tutorials: As of the third year. Academic and job insertion support.
- Class subject tutorials
- Study tutorials: For students who have problems organising their time and with poor study habits.

Transfer and recognition of credits: system proposed by the university in accordance with Article 13 of this Royal Decree.

General regulations
The provisions of Royal Decree 1125/2003, of 5th September, which establishes the European credit system and the assessment system for official university degrees that are valid throughout Spain.

The provisions of Royal Decree 1393/2007, of 29th October, which establishes the organisation of official university degrees.
System proposed by ESADE Law School and Ramon Llull University:

1. Once enrolled at the university, the student requests recognition of the credits for subjects he/she has taken and passed at other universities that offer official degrees.

2. The student submits an application at the Registrar’s Office, along with the following documents:
   - Academic transcript of previous studies showing the subjects in question.
   - Syllabi of the subjects for which the student is requesting recognition of credits.

3. The documentation is verified by the management of the programme. If everything is in order, the documentation is sent to the faculty member responsible for the subject.

4. The faculty member responsible for the subject sends a report on the appropriateness of recognition to the university’s Recognition Committee.

5. Once the application has been considered, the proposal is sent to the Rector’s Office for a final decision and is then approved by the Ramon Llull University Recognition Committee (which consists of one representative from each member school and the Vice Rector of Education and European Convergence).

6. The transferred and recognised subjects appear as such on the student’s academic transcript at Ramon Llull University.

7. The student is notified of the final decision.
