Course Goals	1. Discover a sense of purpose and connect with those key personal motivations related with a sense of Gourse Gours	identity. This is how we help generate real leaders who make decisions based on their values.
	What do I really want to do?
	2. Discover the personal talents that are connected with the interests and abilities of each individual and make them unique by contributing to the creation of a ?personal brand'. What skills do I have?
	3. Connect personal motivations and talent with a real project that takes form through a change agenda - which connects with professional alternatives that may exist in the market or can be generated by the participant. What's am I going to do?
Prerequisits	You may find yourself in one of many different situations while you are reading these lines.
	You may have to decide your professional future. You should choose what do you want to do but you don't know yet
	You would like to know more about your identity: What is your learning style, your leadership style in order to manage your professional future.
	Or in absence of all of these factors, you may be at a point in your life when you want to stop and think about where you are and what you want.
	If you fit any of these descriptions, we welcome you to this subject and your personal journey of discovery.
	The final question that this subject wants to answer is: "How is possible to lead people if you don't lead yourself?"
Teaching methodology	We use 3 methodologies:
	1. Lecturer sessions to Consolidate and explain
	2. Practical classes to Share and experience the contents
	3. Electronic Platform Reflect your conclusions and advanced in your personal awareness. In this platform the participant can do all exercises, assessment and can follow his/her own improvement and development in the program.

Description

Course contribution to program

This subject is an accompanied process of self-awareness and development aimed at improving the effectiveness.

- Personal self-leadership. We believe true leadership begins with self-awareness. Each person can become aware of who they are and discover their purpose in life.

- We believe in a holistic approach to the individual. Everything is connected and we cannot consider a person isolated in a single professional or personal dimension.

- We believe in action as an engine of change. We believe that the development of a personal vision is the starting point for making decisions and generating change.

1	My purpose. This part focuses on the consistency between what we do and who we are on questions such as: knowledge of personal values; interests that move us; the best version of ourselves; and what gives meaning to what we do in a personal and practical reflection that will help clarify ideas and connect with the essence of our personality. This connection will take shape through a personal vision.
2	My talent. This part will explore what Ken Robinson calls 'the element' – meaning something in which we are exceptional and love to do. We can discover or re-discover this element and from here we will build our personal project. Our personal brand

3	Building a plan. We do not think of this as a plan of action, but rather a transformation agenda, where the participant agrees to changes that will Coaching and Personal Effectiveness to the achievement of an objective. In the same way that we prepare a business plan, we will be able to make an agenda for change. The plan (Agenda for change) will be the 'bridge' to link our purpose and our talent with real professional opportunities. Using a guided methodology, we give guidelines for the development of an agenda that commits us to start something, or stop doing something, or do something we are already doing very well with even more success.
