Course Goals

The objective of the course is to increase students' awareness of cultural differences in general and cultural issues in business in particular. In order to better understand these differences and behave accordingly, students will be offered a framework for understanding cultural concepts as well as opportunities to practice the application of these concepts to inter-cultural business dynamics. By using a large number of cases, scenarios, videos and problem solving activities we apply value dimensions, specific local knowledge of cultures and the process of experiential learning to the reality of a multi-cultural business world. We will study values and the consequent variation in - verbal and non-verbal - communication conventions across cultures as well as their impact on inter-cultural understanding.

Thus, the course aims not only at increasing students' knowledge about cultural issues in business, but also their behavioral flexibility in dealing with and adapting to them.

Previous knowledge

None.

Prerequisites

None.

Teaching methodology

This is a highly interactive course with a mix of exposition of content, case analysis, simulations, short video cases, student presentations and projects, and group as well as class discussions. Students are expected to prepare for the sessions with readings, case analysis, and occasional short assignments. In-class active participation is vital, where students are asked to critically reflect the content and frameworks presented, relate to their own experience, and draw connections to the business world. In culturally heterogeneous teams, students will get first-hand experience of potential cross-cultural challenges and their solution, working on different projects, cases, and a presentation to be held in class. At the end of the course, students will be asked to demonstrate their learning in a final evaluation. Moreover, students are encouraged to log their reflections regarding the course.

Description

Course contribution to program

Today's business world is global and cross-cultural competence is key to having a successful business career at a personal level as well as successful international relations at a business level. While the exchange program offers students an in-depths view of one specific culture, this course raises students' awareness with regard to the spectrum of cultural variation and cultural differences and helps them increase their cross-cultural competence, finding solutions to such cross-cultural challenges.
