Course Goals	General learning objectives for this course
--------------	---

Acquire a solid knowledge of the language:

Comprehension:

1. Understand concrete information regarding daily or work-related topics and identify overall content as well as some specific details.
2. Understand the primary information contained in audio or audio-visual material, e.g., televised news programs or reports when these are relatively slow and clear.
3. Read and satisfactorily understand texts on concrete events dealing with familiar topics or those related to students' specialization

Expression:

1. Provide a reasonably fluid description of topics students are familiar with, presenting a linear sequence of the different elements.
2. Develop structured arguments.
3. Explain points of view on a given subject, contrasting the advantages and disadvantages.
4. Be capable of correcting errors when these are pointed out.

Previous knowledge	Language-learning skills and knowledge of corresponding techniques. Knowledge of English will make it easier to learn German.
--------------------	--

Prerequisites	Students must have passed Deutsch 2 or demonstrate the corresponding level of knowledge through a level test (valid for 12 months).
---------------	---

Teaching methodology	Participatory sessions that consist of small groups and request active participation by all participants. The student will - acquire linguistic structures through discovery-based learning. - practice comprehension of written and oral texts.
----------------------	---

- develop concrete communicative skills.
- assimilate structures and vocabulary (oral and written).
- experience different communication scenarios,
- give short presentations prepared beforehand on a given course topic.

Cooperative learning: exchange information with others in order to resolve real-life tasks.

Description

Course contribution to program

In an increasingly globalized world business is not only undertaken at a regional level or solely with neighbouring countries, but on a much wider scale.

As such, versatile and multilingual communication skills are necessary along with a broad and varied cultural training.

Globalization also affects the job market, there is ever greater competition and, ESADE graduates not only compete with others from Spain but those from around the world, students who, in many cases, are multilingual and are culturally sensitive due to numerous stays abroad.

At ESADE, students have the opportunity to acquire a third language, allowing them to undertake a part of their university education in a foreign country (a country in which that language is spoken) or take advantage of job opportunities around the world.

Deutsch 3 is the third of 6 courses in German designed to meet these ends.

Short description

This course is designed for students who have reached level A2.1 of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages.

At the end of level 3 you will have acquired the linguistic means to express opinions on a topic in your personal field, both written and oral. You will be able to explain your plans and opinions and describe your experiences in coherent but simple texts. You will begin to make formal presentations - both prepared and spontaneous - on topics of interest to you. You will be able to participate in discussions on familiar topics.

The acquired level corresponds to level B1/1.
