Course Goals

Welcome!

The main objective of this course is to raise students' interest in global problems and Global Justice and to create awareness of the challenges we face in order to build a better world for everyone.

In line with this main objective, there is a second goal: to incorporate an approach to learn how to analyse a region where one could be exposed to work in any time of their life, or during the SUD Internship program.

Previous knowledge

Must be at least in your 3rd year of your degree or MUA.

Prerequisites

Students have to be enrolled in:

- a. 3rd year of the BBA programme.
- b. 4th year of the GBD programme.
- c. 3rd year of GEL programme.
- d. 3rd year of DBAI programme
- e. Master Universitario de Acceso a la Abogacía

Teaching methodology

Classes will generally consist of three parts:

- 1. Lectures from guest speakers on the session topics.
- 2. Additional material, articles and/or videos to complement the lectures and prepare students for class.
- 3. Class dialogues.

In addition, SUD Internship alumni will take part in some sessions to share their experiences.

Description

Course contribution to program

This course is particularly addressed to those students who want to carry out the SUD Internship program. Nonetheless, the content we will cover is also useful and surely interesting in professional terms, and personal development, for any Esade student:

At Esade each and one of you is building a professional (and personal) path. For all, there is an open question: to what end? Each and every one of us may have (or may be building) a particular response to this question. As such, many of us are aware that there are many pending tasks for the world we may want to live in. For many of you, the question of “to what end” may be linked (even if partially) to these pending global problems.

As managers, lawyers, consultants, or economists there is a lot we can offer to address these global challenges. However, to do so one must understand these challenges: in what system do they play and how does it affect them. Additionally, professionals must understand the context (be it social, historical, economic, cultural) in which the challenges they address are taking place.

In Global Justice in Action we want to contribute to building a more comprehensive understanding of the global challenges the world faces, in terms of global justice, and the particular context of a region, Latin America, where these challenges take place and where most students interested in participating in the SUD Internship program will be working. Examining and discussing the concrete context of Latin America region will be equally valuable and applicable to other regions students may be working, gaining insights, perspectives and tools helpful for analysing similar contexts.

Essays

Personal reflection relating the course content with the ideas expressed in an article that will be provided.

Content

#	Topic
1	Social trends & challenges. During this session we will have a quick look at social trends and social challenges around the world and how these are interrelated. Additionally, we will debate some old but current social challenges through the reading of a universal masterpiece of literature "The Grapes of Warth".
2	Global Justice After having reviewed the social challenges ahead (topic 1) and what we can do about it, we will address this class to talk about how the SUD Internship program works and its dynamics.
3	Close-up to Latin America: History. During this session we will cover, in broad terms, the history of the Latin American region. We will take a look at the systems or institutions that were established throughout the centuries in the different countries and review some social problems with shared roots.
4	Close-up to Latin America: Culture. During this session we will start by analyzing our own culture, and we will continue by covering the grandeur, legacy and cultural diversity of the region, in particular, appreciating the wealth of its literature.
5	Close-up to Latin America: Economy. Students will be able to better understand the region's economic development of last century and its up's and down's in building a better future.
6	And what next? Re-thinking the world we live in and the alternative models for development.
