Teaching methodology	The course is dependent on students taking an active role in the tasks and in their own development. For the single degree, the course is largely asynchronous: students will submit their Final Degree Project (FDP) draft and perform their FDP presentation. For the double degree, the course is presential.

Description

Short description	Single degree (GEL): The course aims to support students with their Final Degree Project (FDP) via asynchronous moodle activities and feedback on their FDP draft and FDP presentation + Q&A session. Double degree (GDL): The course is centered around TOEFL test preparation (a test which students are recommended to take for their international exchange) and preparing a literature review, a key part of their final degree project.
