Description

Course contribution to program

This elective course offers senior undergraduate students an opportunity to collaborate with a professor in a research assistant role, focusing on tasks that support ongoing research projects. Designed for students who are eager to deepen their understanding of a specialized area within their field of study and cultivate essential research skills, the course emphasizes practical experience in literature review, data collection, analysis, and interpretation. Through close mentorship and hands-on involvement, students will enhance their research capabilities, refine their critical thinking, and prepare a position paper reflecting their learning and insights in the chosen research area.

Short description

This elective course offers students the opportunity to work closely with a professor on an ongoing research project. The objective is to foster intellectual curiosity and help students develop relevant skills in applied research methods.
